

Power Analyst
Vermont Public Power Supply Authority (VPPSA)
Waterbury Center, Vermont

The Vermont Public Power Supply Authority (VPPSA) is seeking a Power Analyst to support power supply planning, wholesale market participation, and resource portfolio development for Vermont's community-owned electric utilities. This position offers an exciting opportunity to work at the intersection of energy markets, renewable resources, utility planning, and public power.

Responsibilities

- Analyze and evaluate power supply resources, including hydro, solar, wind, biomass, and natural gas.
- Support resource portfolio planning and long-term energy supply strategies.
- Develop short and long-term energy, load, and commodity forecasts.
- Analyze wholesale energy market opportunities and recommend energy purchase and sale strategies.
- Prepare regulatory and compliance filings.
- Assist in managing energy portfolios within ISO New England markets.
- Prepare reports, presentations, and educational materials for member utilities and stakeholders.
- Support the development, negotiation, and administration of power supply contracts.
- Present market analysis and strategic recommendations to staff, management, and member utilities.

Qualifications

Required:

- Strong analytical and quantitative skills.
- Advanced proficiency in Microsoft Excel.
- Excellent written and verbal communication skills.
- Ability to work independently and collaboratively in a fast-paced environment.

Preferred:

- Experience in the electric utility industry.
- Knowledge of wholesale energy markets, forecasting, portfolio management, or energy trading.
- Experience with databases, data analytics, or business intelligence tools.

Why Join VPPSA?

VPPSA serves Vermont's community-owned electric utilities and helps deliver reliable, affordable, and sustainable energy solutions to communities across the state. This role provides a unique opportunity to contribute to Vermont's energy future while working alongside experienced utility and energy professionals.
